

Explore the Oud

The oud is a pear-shaped string instrument with a rounded back and a short neck. While the oud looks like a big gourd, its body is actually made out of many wooden strips—in fact, its name in Arabic means “thin strips of wood”! Ten of the strings are paired together—pairs of strings play the same note—with one low string on its own.

