The Studio Towers Renovation Project will enable Carnegie Hall to transform its facilities, ensuring that the Hall remains the premier international destination for the world's greatest artists in the 21st century and beyond. The renovations fully support Carnegie Hall's non-profit mission—making great music accessible to as many people as possible—creating new inspirational spaces dedicated to music education within the existing upper floors of the building. A new Education Wing will include ensemble rooms, practice rooms, and teaching studios, as well as a state-of-the-art home for Carnegie Hall's Archives. Adjacent to the Education Wing will be a new outdoor Roof Terrace—a gathering place for visitors to the building. These new facilities will ultimately provide a wonderful setting in which to inspire a lifelong love of music in young musicians, students, and educators, enabling Carnegie Hall to increase the number of people that it serves. Carnegie Hall's education and community programs, along with online initiatives, currently engage more than 350,000 people around the world annually, including tens of thousands of New York City public school students. The project will also fully refurbish Carnegie Hall's backstage areas, upgrading and reconfiguring them to achieve maximum efficiency.

Construction work will be completed by 2014, coordinated with Carnegie Hall's performance and rehearsal schedules. Carnegie Hall's three auditoriums will not be touched by the renovations, and performance calendars will be largely unaffected in future seasons.
